Introduction

The Persian Film Festival is an independent event that is held during the Iran International Festival in Toronto, Canada, from March 16 to March 23, and England In collaboration with SOAS University of London, on March 22 & 23, 2025. This festival is the prelude to holding one of the main Persian Awards.

SOAS
University of London

The festival is held in three main parts:

1. Film Screenings
2. Conferences
3. Film Market

Film Screenings

The works of Iranian filmmakers, including short films, feature films, documentaries, animations, etc., as well as works in Persian or featuring Iranian actors, were displayed in this section.

Conference

This specialized conference is held with the participation of film production and distribution professionals, as well as professionals of different nationalities.

Film Market

Simultaneously with the different parts of the festival, the film market is implemented as the most important need of filmmakers and distributors in cooperation with international companies.

Adapt

This sequence-plan film, which was filmed with an iPhone, is a snapshot of the live of couples who instead of love, sadism and masochism, advance their relationships. They are neither able to build nor even separate. Neither of them is superior to the other, and it is as if they do not see each other and only continue to coexist. Maybe that's the main problem ... not seeing.

Anteater

The cold relationship between a married couple takes a turn for the better; The film narrates the life of a couple. From the dialogue in the film, it is implied that the husband gets a headache and the doctor recommends him to do a handstand against the wall for a few minutes The film starts from the scene where the husband is doing the handstand against the wall. Meanwhile, he imagines himself in place of his wife, and this image is shown in the film. The imaginary male wife enters the house while getting little attention from the imaginary female husband. The wife is pregnant and tells the story to the husband. The husband gets upset and saddened by this. The male wife has to go through her pregnancy alone and no one is her side. When she gets a big belly, she goes to a gynecologist for the last time and she encounters several women with different problem. As she gets back to home, the man is done with his handstand and gives his wife a warm welcome. It looks like a better romantic relationship has begun.

Departure

Hilda and Behzad are on their way to a farewell party (hosted by Hilda's cousin, Hasti, to celebrate her emigration to Istanbul). Hilda and Behzad receive a phone call from the hospital informing them that the medical expenses for their infant child are high, and they have limited time for treatment. Due to Behzad and Hilda's financial situation, Hilda suggests to Behzad that they send the child with Hasti and Saeed (who have no children) for treatment abroad (Istanbul). However, she emphasizes that Hasti and Saeed should not know about the child's illness, as they would not take the child if they knew. Behzad disagrees, as he has no answer for his family, especially his mother. In any case, he must either accept the loss of the child or accept the stigma of being known in his family as someone who gave their child up for adoption. Finally, Hilda confesses that she has already promised Hasti and Saeed to give them the child, and Behzad agrees. They arrive at the restaurant and the party a bit late. Saeed, Hasti's husband, asks Behzad to talk alone in the car. He thanks Behzad and says that he and his life owe him. When Saeed asks Behzad to get out of the car and join the party, Behzad asks Saeed to wait a moment..

Elephant

The ecotourism of a young man in the world city of Yazd in Iran has slowed down due to the decrease in tourist arrivals due to US economic sanctions. They support it, but they also face a money deficit. He decides to travel to Malaysia to buy an elephant and bring it to Iran to attract tourists from inside Iran by placing it in the main square of the city, and to improve the eco-tourism business. When he goes to Malaysia and sees the conditions of receiving tourists, he decides to change his plan and become a native. He returns from Singapore and Malaysia but is hospitalized due to Korna and can not attend the opening ceremony of his new project; Bicycles on loan to tourists (new elephant design) to participate, but at the opening ceremony it is announced that all gatherings and assembly plans are prohibited. The opening ceremony will be disrupted and therefore the warning of this plan will be canceled. Eventually he closes the ecotourism and runs a medical mask factory, but his masks are not sold.

Fight Among the Shadows

This short animation tells the story of our Iranian passport and the last two years of our lives as documented through its stamps. It highlights how the bureaucratic processes kept us apart . The film explores the idea that we, as human beings, should not be defined solely by our passports, nationalities, or the power those passports hold. We are more than just a passport. While passport stamps typically only record travel details and entries and exits, this animation aims to show that we, as individuals, carry something far more profound. We are souls connected to lands full of memories, emotions, culture, and dreams.

Football Aficionado

Zahra, a 27-year-old Iranian football enthusiast, avidly supports Persepolis, one of Tehran's biggest f ootball teams. However, due to an unwritten law in Iran, women are prohibited from attending football games in stadiums. Despite facing gender-based discrimination, Zahra decides to challenge the status quo by disguising herself as a man to attend live matches. Unexpectedly, her actions become a catalyst for a nationwide movement against gender inequality. Zahra's story goes viral on social media, attracting attention from the press and empowering other young women to speak out. This documentary follows Zahra's journey as she becomes a symbol of defiance against oppressive cultural norms, offering an intimate glimpse into the challenges faced by Iranian women in their ongoing struggle for equal rights.

Rat & Cat

"The poem ""Rat and Cat"" is a famous critical and satirical ode of Iranian 8th century poet Obed Zakani. In this system, the cats of Kerman break their promise after making a promise and tricking the mice, and a war breaks out between the mice and the cats in the deserts of Fars. In this allegorical satire, he criticizes the rulers and upper classes and exposes asceticism and hypocrisy that is still prevalent in our contemporary society."
